

I spy a triangle

This game is about walking around the sculptures and looking at their shapes. Many triangles are hidden in the sculptures. A nose can be triangular. So can a bent elbow or knee. Two shoulders and a bellybutton can form the three points of a triangle. A shadow under an arm can be triangular. And so on.

1. Tear out as many paper triangles as you need.
2. Examine the sculptures from all angles and look for triangular shapes.
Try holding a paper triangle in front of your face and closing one eye.
3. Call out "I spy a triangle" when you find a triangular shape.
If the other players recognize the triangle, you get a point.
4. The first player to get ten points wins.
